

WASHINGTON NEWS GOSSIP

By CHARLES BROOKS SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24.—Representative George M. Bowers is able to walk only with the aid of a cane. Coming from the Republican party caucus on the bonus bill, a caucus of House members of that party that didn't adjourn until one o'clock in the morning, he missed a step and fell hard on the marble walk. Fortunately he sustained no fractured bones, but he suffered several sprains and bruises.

William M. Polk has been designated acting postmaster at Murfreesboro, W. Va.

A marriage license was issued in this city to Alpha L. Surface, of Watteville, W. Va., and Nellie Surface, of Ashville, Va.

After several days spent in the Capital attending to important private business affairs, Senator Jesse A. Bloch, of Wheeling, has returned to his home.

Senator Davis Elkins is at his home in Morgantown, having gone there to cast his vote at the primary election on next Tuesday, and to give the once over to the local preliminaries for that event arranged by the party organization in Monongalia county.

Through Congressman Echols' office a settlement has been effected with the government for Dr. Vanderbilt Brown, of Charleston who presented a claim for personal property lost by him when he was in the army service in France. The settlement was for $274.20. Another claim, adjustment of soldier's compensation, was settled on the basis of $456.30 for Allen Bell, of Charleston. A refund from the internal revenue department, amounting to $51.23, on account of overpaid income tax, was secured for Lee O. Campbell, of Stotsbury, W. Va. Application for equipment for the following ex-service men have been approved: Thos. B. Barrett, of Splice; Fred J. Clark, of Oak Hill; Frank R. Buttrick, of Gatewood; William E. Kerns, of Lewisburg; and John W. Rogers, of Table Rock.

John Walker Fenton, Jr., who is private secretary to Senator Elkins, has gone to Elkins to cast his vote at the primary. Mr. Fenton's name is on the ticket as a candidate for alternate to delegate-at-large. Col. Dave Dinger, a shining light of secretarial capability attached to the Elkins' office staff, has gone to Wheeling to deposit his ballot.

An army band from Camp Taylor will be sent to Grafton to help in the annual Memorial Day observance. It will remain over the following day, the 31st, to stage a recruit campaign. Arrangements for the visit of the army band to Grafton were made by Senator Sutherland with the general in command at Fort Taylor.

Unless application is made by the next of kin the body of no soldier will be brought back from France. Congressman Woodard has a number of cases of this kind, and said today that there was evidently a misunderstanding as to procedure. "I have been endeavoring," he said, "to eliminate all misunderstanding relative to the bringing back of the bodies of our soldier boys who made the supreme sacrifice in behalf of our great nation. Unless application is properly filed with the War Department by the next of kin the bodies will be allowed to remain abroad by the War Department. Other members of the State delegation have encountered the same misunderstanding, and like the fourth district representative, have gone about correcting it. The bodies of very few of the West Virginia soldiers buried in France have been brought back home.

Unless something unforeseen happens, West Virginia will not be represented in either branch of the Congress on next Tuesday, the two Senators and six Representatives all having gone home to cast their ballots at the primary. Five of the eight are candidates in the primary. Senator Sutherland is a candidate in the presidential primary, and the six Representatives are up for renomination and opinion here is that all six of them will land right-side up with care. Senator Davis Elkins is the only member of the delegation who is out of the state and stress of a primary this year. The trains leaving around midnight Monday will carry the few members of the delegation not able to depart before that time, and the rear guard of a host of other West Virginians that has been on the move out of here for the home State for a week past.

The state primary campaign which is to close Tuesday with balloting is being discussed by West Virginians in Washington as the most unusual campaign that has ever been held in their state. It has been characterized by only a languid interest, no spectacularism, few meetings and no speeches worth bothering to remember.

This primary campaign, according to the view of the observer and student of political scurrage, has been fought out almost entirely from beginning to end, by professional politicians and publicity agents. Never have the advertising columns of the state press been used in any campaign to the extent that they have been used in this preliminary one. It has been the greatest political advertising campaign in the history of West Virginia politics and the West Virginia newspaper business. The weekly papers, which outnumber the dailies, ten to one have had a harvest of business which has given their publishers a taste of how it feels to be a war profiteer. They have had more advertising offered them at their own price, than they could take care of.

Another striking feature of this unusual campaign that is talked of more than it is, is that it contained a fundamental issue as vital to the government of the State of West Virginia as it is to the government of the United States. It remained submerged throughout. It was taboed by speakers and publicity agents editors ignored it, and it got a hearing only in private conversation. There is still the hope that this soft pedal policy in regard to changing the form and substance of government into government by a class, didn't elude the mid of the great conservative, patriotic, equal to all and special privileges to none class in their moments of reflection.

This issue was raised for the first time in West Virginia in this campaign by the entrance of union labor as a political organization and by the candidacy of Samuel B. Montgomery as the favorite of that element, which attracted other associations far more dangerous. The Socialist party moved over into the Montgomery camp, bag and breeches, and its most active and influential workers have been managers, assistant managers, lieutenants, sub-lieutenants and field men for the Montgomery campaign from the time it started. One of the most prominent of these is Walter B. Hilton, of Wheeling. He has announced that he will enter the primary as a Republican so as to vote for Montgomery. The Socialists, very largely, are expected to follow his tip, and profess conversion to the Republican party temporarily for this purpose. They are to be Republicans for a day, at least. It is reasonable to suppose that the members of the nine Communist camps in West Virginia, which the Department of Justice recently stated existed there, have made the same arrangements, but as their meetings are secret there is no means of knowing that.

That the candidacy of their favorite is loaded down and embarrassed by certain elements—not the Socialists, American element of organized labor—Montgomery's managers admit by openly attempting to reverse the axiomatic truth of long acceptance that a man is known by his associates in politics and in every other avenue of life. This, they say, isn't true in Montgomery's case. A lot of the lunatic fringe and most dangerous and criminal radicals have come trickled into this camp, and their candidate should not be held responsible for this fact. It is these elements that have done organized labor since the war, almost irreparable damage, and they couldn't prevent them from whooping it up for Montgomery. If they would make the attempt. They are helpless to prevent it, for their eleven-hour sympathetic appeal.

The danger, as the politicians here view it, is that the conservative vote will be so evenly split up between Morgan and Grosscup that Montgomery might lose in the end. It is a matter of life and death to the conservative vote. They don't expect it, but they do fear it might happen. Montgomery is the best speaker and the shrewdest politician of the three, they admit, and is resourceful and as cunning as a fox. He has what his two opponents have not—personality plus. Those who oppose him do say of him that no man in the state is better equipped to lead the army of conflicting and discordant elements that are amalgamated behind his candidacy than Montgomery. As a side issue to his show, the Plunk Plan of government-ownership-of-railroads agitators, have congressional candidates running in the Second and Fourth districts. For the same inexplicable reason the same soft-pedal policy has been followed by their opponents.

The same issue, it is pointed out, exists in the Democratic contest for governor. Adam Littlepage is the Sam Montgomery in that party and Koonz is the counterpart of Morgan-Grosscup. He is the conservative and has the backing of the party organization untied, and the party organization predicts his nomination with confidence. One of the things that they count on helping them nominate Koonz is the desertion of a large number of men of the Montgomery-Littlepage school of political economy, who have heretofore been listed as Democrats, to the Republican party for the day of the primary, at any rate to vote for Montgomery. The Democratic primary has all but been lost sight of on account of the more interesting situation in the Republican party, whose chances for success next November, if either Grosscup or Morgan wins, is regarded by the Democrats as 100 to 1. Should Montgomery be the nominee, and Koonz, the Democratic rooster in West Virginia will suddenly shake off its grave damp and become a very lively scraggy bird. But should Montgomery and Littlepage both be nominated—well, state politicians here just won't discuss that; it's too unthinkable shocking and depressing for them.
